Amidst the constant pinging from Microsoft Teams that defined my days as a paralegal, an unexpected email arrived. The subject line glowed with a lustrous promise: an opportunity to embark on a professional football journey across the globe in Japan. In that fleeting moment, I tried to balance the caution of realism with a more daring idealism. The decision demanded not just a leap of faith but an extraordinary leap across linguistic, cultural, and vocational boundaries. I knew I had to take this chance.

The invitation to play in Japan truly came out of the blue. However, the opportunity to play professionally was something that I had always thought was possible even from a young age. I am the first one in my family to have played sports at the college level let alone the professional level. Despite this, sports were ingrained into my everyday life. Every time one sports season concluded, my enthusiasm for the next, whether it was football, basketball, or soccer, took over. This ultimately fueled my successful college football career, with multiple seasons of being a starter and a contributor to whichever team I was a part of. Like many college players, I had a dream of playing professionally in the NFL and signed with an agent who dropped me instantly when that dream didn't materialize. But this experience only pushed me to become more interested in the legal side of the sport I loved. Leveraging my experience from signing an NFL agent contract, I became aware of the intricate details and negotiations involved in player agreements. Every aspect, particularly the wording of clauses and incentives, held significant weight so when it came time for me to negotiate my contract for Japan without representation, my experience and interest in legal matters sharpened my awareness of the fine details of my contract.

The terms of the contract were a combination of salary-based compensation and incentives contingent on my performance. Once I arrived, the biggest initial hurdle I encountered was a profound disconnect with my teammates. I could no longer rely on giving speeches or uplifting teammates with my words as a vocal leader. From this adversity emerged a transformation in my leadership approach. I would stay late after each practice to show my teammates drills to help them improve. Not a word was said, yet the actions themselves held great significance. I realized the necessity of leading by example, understanding that my actions held the potential to go beyond mere words and forge the camaraderie with my teammates that is necessary for success. I learned that there are other ways to be a leader.

My time in Japan revealed to me my capacity to innovate, adapt, and thrive in the face of adversity. As the Defensive Player of the Year and the recipient of my team's MVP award, I had woven my story into the tapestry of our collective triumph. But along with my pride in my individual accomplishments, I slowly came to realize some of the systemic disparities that seeped through the fabric of the game. American professional players, including myself, received fair compensation for our play, while our Japanese counterparts went unpaid. In response, I hoped to bridge the pay gap with small yet significant gestures of solidarity. Week after week, I took a portion of my earnings to share meals with my teammates. I was grateful for the fulfillment and opportunities to learn about new cultures that football gave me, but the experience inspired my sense of purpose and invigorated my commitment to investigating similar injustices within the broader sports industry.

The systemic disparities I encountered in Japan made me reflect on a similar issue plaguing the United States: the gender pay gap which is particularly rife in sports. The U.S. women's national soccer team has been leading this movement for equal pay in sports, most notably with their 2016 lawsuit that reached an agreement back in May of 2022 with the U.S. Soccer Federation. The results were equal pay for the women's national team and $22,000,000 in back pay. This issue has propelled me back towards the realm of law that I had just left. A pursuit that began as an attempt to chase a dream evolved into a calling to address imbalances and reshape systemic norms through law.

This is exactly why I am pursuing law school now. I want to follow in the footsteps of the hardworking attorneys who advocated for the United States women's national soccer team in their class action equal pay lawsuit against the U.S. Soccer Federation. Inspired by these attorneys and my experience witnessing firsthand the pay gap in professional football in Japan, I am eager to pursue legal fields such as intellectual property law and international law because they are fundamental to effectively championing fairness and equity. By studying these areas of law, I can contribute to protecting the rights of all athletes. As I stand at this crossroads, my love for the game intertwines with a resolute commitment to advocate for equity, making law not just my academic pursuit but the means to effect transformative change.

Learn about federal tax benefits for education, including the American Opportunity tax credit.

Expected Family Contribution: 0

You are not eligible to receive a Federal Pell Grant because you reported that you have a bachelor's degree (Item 28) or you are working on a degree beyond a bachelor's degree (Item 47). Your financial aid administrator will determine what types of federal student aid you are eligible to receive.

FAFSA Data

Your FAFSA data reflects the answers you provided on your FAFSA form. Assumed values are marked with an asterisk (*).

What you must do now:

Use the checklist below to make sure that all of your issues are resolved.

• If you need to make corrections to your information, select "Make Correction" on the "My FAFSA" page using your account username and password (FSA ID). If you need additional help with your Student Aid Report (SAR), contact your school's financial aid office or select the "Get FAFSA help" link from the FAFSA home page. If your mailing address or email address changes, you can make the correction online.

Financial Aid History

The information below is the total amount of student loans that you owe. These loans are administered by the U.S. Department of Education (ED). You should confirm that these loan totals are correct. You can view details on the individual loans that make up these totals on your Aid Summary. If you feel that the amounts listed on this page are incorrect, or you have other questions related to a loan, you should contact the loan servicer indicated on your Aid Summary. You can obtain general information about each of the types of loans that are listed below by visiting StudentAid.gov.

Note that the "Subsidized" and "Unsubsidized" amounts include the appropriate portions of any Consolidation Loans you may have. If there is an amount listed for "Unallocated Consolidation Loans," it is because we could not determine whether those balances were subsidized or unsubsidized.

Remember, you are responsible for repaying all of the amounts that you borrow plus interest. As a general rule, with an assumed interest rate of 5%, the monthly payment amount over a ten-year repayment period would be approximately $10.61 for every $1,000 that you borrowed. Your actual repayment amount will depend upon how much you borrow, the interest rate when you enter repayment, and how long your repayment term is.

The school(s) listed on your application have access to your information. The school(s) may put together or change an aid package based on your Expected Family Contribution and notify you.

The amount of aid you receive from a school will depend on the cost of attendance at that school, your enrollment status (i.e., full-time, three-quarter-time, half-time, or less than half-time), congressional appropriations, and other factors. Review your financial aid notification from the school(s) or contact the financial aid administrator at the school(s).

Note: Your school has the authority to request copies of certain financial documents to verify information you reported on your application.

To protect the confidentiality of your application data, you should never give, share, or disclose your FSA ID to anyone, including commercial service providers that provide assistance with the financial aid process. You should keep your FSA ID in a safe location.

According to the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, no persons are required to respond to a collection of information unless such collection displays a valid OMB control number. The valid OMB control number for this information collection is 1845-0001. Public reporting burden for this collection of information is estimated to average 5 to 10 minutes per response, including time for reviewing instructions, searching existing data sources, gathering and maintaining the data needed, and completing and reviewing the collection of information. The obligation to respond to this collection is voluntary. If you have comments or concerns regarding the status of your individual submission of this form, please contact the Federal Student Aid Information Center, P.O. Box 84, Washington, D.C. 20044 directly.

We may request additional information from you to process your application more efficiently. We will collect this additional information only as needed and on a voluntary basis.

By answering questions 101a through 101t, and signing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA®) form, you give permission to the U.S. Department of Education to provide information from your application to the college(s) you entered. You also agree that such information is deemed to incorporate by reference the certification statement on the sign and submit page of the financial aid application. The certification statement can be viewed at StudentAid.gov/2223/help/certification-statement.

WARNING: If you are convicted of drug distribution or possession for an offense that occurred while you were receiving federal student aid, your eligibility for federal student aid is subject to suspension or termination. If your drug conviction status changes at any time during the 2022–23 award year, you must update your answer to the drug conviction affecting eligibility question.
